THE GREAT OUTDOORS

Claus a natural fit for Sewickley

By Jon Paul Creese

Staff writer

April Claus comes to Sewickley Heights with a reputation of almost supernatural clout, as some folks who have worked with her will attest.

Chris Erler remembers a captivating incident involving the borough's new naturalist.

While searching for snakes in Fox Chapel during a nature walk with school children, a group of kids flipped a rock and out squirmed a northern watersnake in a feeble attempt to elude curiosity.

"April dove head first and caught it," Erler says.

"She ran and dove like Superman, he re-affirmed. "That gives you an idea of how excited and determined she is."

But, unlike Superman, Claus is not a genetically enhanced "woman" of steel, and diving for reptiles probably hurts.

She's not afraid of getting her hands dirty, either.

Claus proved this during her latest in a series of nature walks through Sewickley Heights Park.

No superhuman feats were observed, but Claus did strengthen her reputation for being the right person for the job, as she continued the daunting task of identifying, documenting and tracing every organism in the 1,000-acre park.

Claus has generated public and professional interest in the park, welcoming such renowned naturalists as Ester Allen, Beth Lewis (aka. Mother Nature), former head of the Sewickley Heights Nature Center, and Jean Daniels, Little Sewickley Creek Nature Guides president.

She is also working with Sewickley Hunt to maintain area trails.

"April provides a connection between the park and the nature center," Lewis said during the walk, which began at the S.H. maintenance facility and progressed up a hill to the site of a former popular cabin.

"She's fabulous ... very knowledgeable," added Lewis, who is still involved with nature center programs. "It's nice to have her at the nature center."

Claus, who became the borough's full-time naturalist about a month ago and works out of the center, has hosted several such walks and plans to continue them even after she has satisfied her own goal of a complete inventory.

"I see it as ongoing. It's basically a [continuous] bio inventory of the park," said

Citizens oppose litigation, ask for resignations

By Jon Paul Creese

Staff writer

Several dozen unhappy residents turned out for this month's commissioner's meeting that was so heated, the solicitor and board president walked out.

"We can't hold a meeting with people shouting," said Oliver Poppenberg, board president as he exited.

Bernard Rubb, solicitor, echoed those statements, calling the meeting a "zoo."

After Poppenberg and Rubb walked out, commissioner Gloria Vish took over and called the meeting to order with the remaining commissioners.

When audience members began asking questions and then for the resignation of the entire board, Vish along with Linda Talmon offered up their resignations.

This announcement was met with loud applause from the attendees.

The reason for the harsh words is the current litigation going on within the township.

In retaliation against Aleppo Commissioner Carolyn Smith's requests for a complete list of those who pay business privilege and occupation taxes to the township, the four remaining commissioners filed a lawsuit Thursday in Common Pleas Court.

The suit comes on the heels of a federal court ruling that the other four commissioners, Poppenberg Sr., vice president Rick Starr, Vish and Talmon, along with Rubb, violated the

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

Claus natural fit for Sewickley Heights Borough

the amphibian/reptile specialist for whom "bio-blitzes" are the norm. "It's very important to document what you have before it disappears."

"What I'd like to see is, eventually, when we get a GPS unit, we can identify species and generate maps of what we have in the area," she explained. "I did this with reptiles and amphibians for the state of Pennsylvania, and we were surprised by what we lost."

While earning a master's degree in biology at Allegheny College, she participated in the Pennsylvania Herpetological Atlas Project. Claus was in charge of organizing and teaching a group of 800 volunteers for the project.

"It was great," she said. "I really enjoyed the teaching end of it."

During a recent nature walk, Claus and the group began at a creek that runs along the maintenance building, searching for salamanders, specifically, and anything else that might emerge from rocks beneath the cold, shallow waters.

Among the finds were the dusky salamander, known for its solid, grayish-brown color and white line that extends from the eye, and the slimy salamander, identified by its small white spots against a comparatively dark complexion.

Soon the group split into small or individual factions, closely inspecting various plant and animal life.

Allen helped Claus document several plants and ferns, including a rattlesnake fern, an evergreen variety, a multi-floral rose, young, tremulous garlic mustard plants and skunk cabbage, which is easily identified by its scent.

Claus pointed out a patch of spice bushes, noting an abundance of the species throughout the area.

She also explained that certain species of plants are "invasive."

"That means they are exotic ... from another country or don't belong here," she explained. "When we say, 'invasive,' that means they are causing trouble."

Claus documents these findings as well. Some things that seem rare, like the colona moth, a nickel-sized fluttering bug, may simply be elusive.

"They are not particularly rare," Allen informed the curious group of onlookers. "We just don't see the little things."

Claus' passion for nature and all that lies therein is evident in her pursuit to educate others. She taught on the Pittsburgh Voyager, a floating laboratory that aims to educate school children on various aspects of river ecology, for three years. She started her own business involving an educational reptile and amphibian program using live reptiles.

For the last five years, she worked for the biology department at the University of Pittsburgh.

"I've been trying to teach kids what lives in Pennsylvania," she explained. "I think it's important. If people aren't aware of what lives in the state, how can you protect it?"

Claus said she gets frustrated at a perceived imbalance of educational intensity on exotic areas like the Amazon rain forests, which may have less bearing on local children than, say, spotting a hellbender that can be found in the state.

"You show (kids) a two-foot salamander, and their like, 'Wow!'"

She also stresses the importance of how wildlife interacts with nature.

"Snakes have a role. They are here for a reason," she says. "I'm going to use my skills from my master's program to do educational things here."

Claus, who in the past conducted several Ecosystem Explorer programs at the nature center for Sewickley Academy and Montessori schools, is planning educational walks throughout the borough in hopes to give residents an appreciation for wildlife.

"They kept asking me back," she said. "They really liked the program. We're thinking of expanding that idea."

She believes another autumn program she used to conduct that focuses on identifying macroinvertebrates in local streams will go over big.

It incorporates some of the most rewarding aspects of the job for someone like Claus who appreciates all aspects of nature.

"The kids got dirty and wet," she said. "They loved it."

Claus learned to advocate a hands-on approach to studying nature when she was a child.

"When I was little my dad would take me out camping," she said. "He let me play in the mud. I was a tomboy."

John J. Claus also took his young daughter fishing.

"I really loved to be with him and be outside," she said. "He was a really good role-model."

Claus intends to be the same, naturally.

"I just love being outside; and I love teaching," she said. "If you can put these two things together, you can learn all kinds of different things."

Citizens opposing new litigation

Sunshine Act by holding secret meetings that excluded Smith.

The Sunshine Act requires agencies to give notice of their meetings to the public and to hold open meetings.

The court ruled the four commissioners "continued the conspiracy" started by a pre-reorganization board against Smith by interfering with her ability to perform the functions of an elected official.

It ruled they illegally required Smith to go through extensive red tape, and to pay fees, to view township documents.

With litigation costs climbing near the $400,000 mark for the financially-distressed township, the new lawsuit has some residents up in arms.

Aleppo residents have formed a litigation opposition group aimed at stifling the new law suit.

The commissioners' action does not represent Aleppo Township, but rather the commissioners' personal interests, said Barry Pitek, head of the group.

Pitek fears the legal battles will continue to burden the small township, which laid off its entire police force more than a year ago to alleviate a financial crisis.

He led the group of residents at the standing-room-only meeting,

Rubb, who is representing the township, said it is in the taxpayers' interests to proceed with the law suit.

Rubb said Smith demanded confidential tax information from Mary Louis Bittner, the township's interim manager and the tax collector.

"I don't know what ... she's up to," Rubb said. "She claims to want to make sure the tax collector is doing her job."

"It's unconscionable," he added, noting Pennsylvania statutes governing personal tax records.

The proper way to audit tax records is to hire a professional auditor, Rubb said.

Poppenberg said he expects a ruling in favor of the township based on the law, rather than emotional testimony.

"She presented a case on emotion," he said of the recent ruling in Smith's favor. "That's what the judge bought."

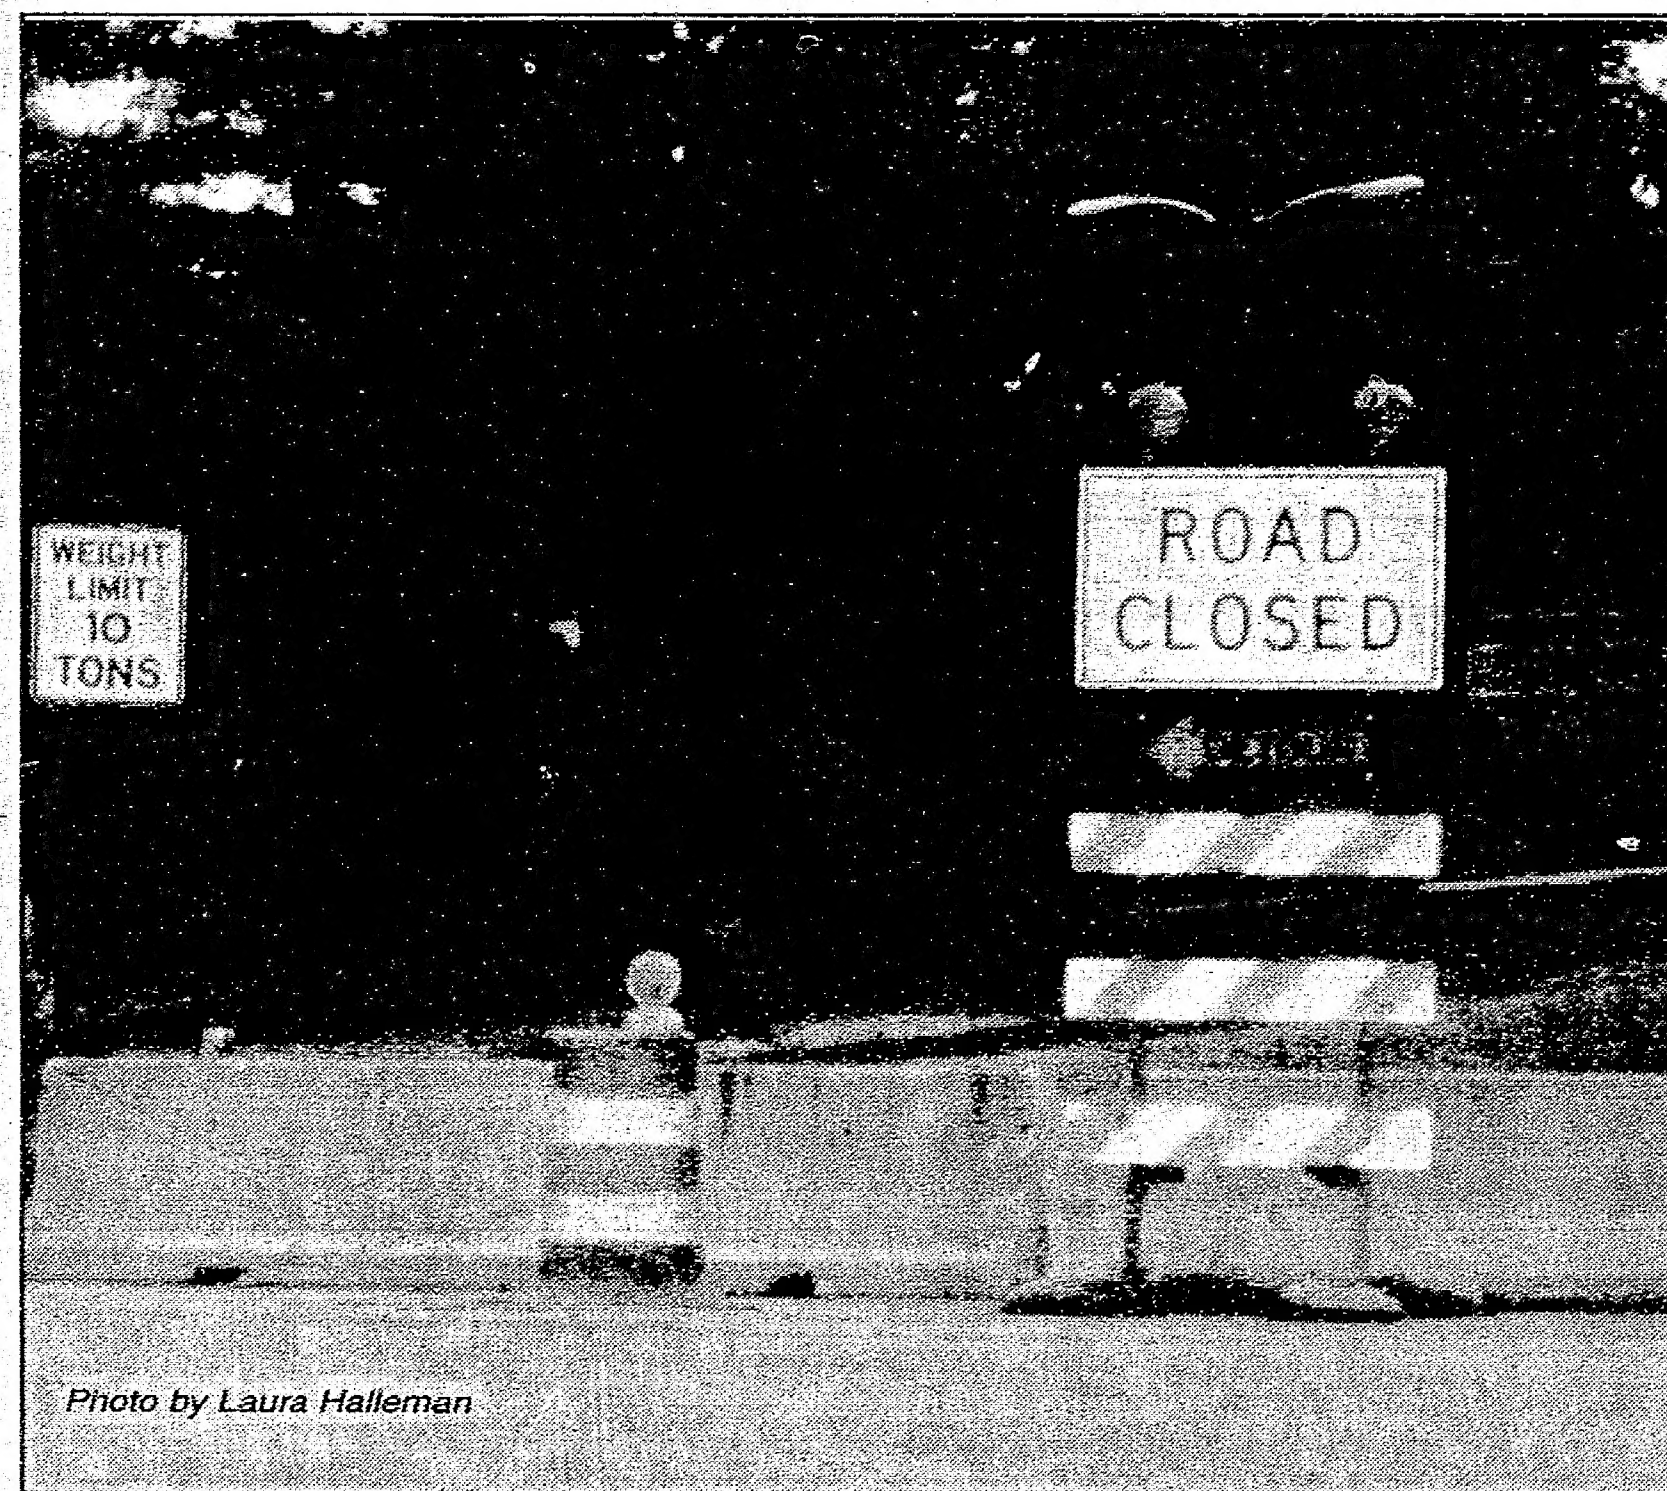

"This thing is going to be overturned," he said of the township's appeal.

Furthermore, Poppenberg believes that a state court will improve the township's chances of receiving justice.

"The federal judge was interfering with state laws," Poppenberg said of U.S. District Judge Arthur Schwab's ruling in the case filed by the American Civil Liberties Union on Smith's behalf.

"That's why we had to go to state court."

THE RUSTIC municipal/recreational building is nearly complete and will blend in with the planned park that will sit adjacent to it.

Sewickley Hills building in the works

By Laura Halleman

Staff writer

Thanks to a $70,000 grant and the aid of volunteers, Sewickley Hills residents will soon be able to enjoy a new borough and recreation building, as well as a community park off Magee Road.

The Sewickley Hills Borough Municipal/Recreational building is being renovated and having recently received a $70,000 matching grant from the Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, a community park is in the works adjacent to the facility.

Located at 349 Magee Road, the beautifully rustic architecture of the municipal/recreational building fits well with the planned park that will sit alongside it.

"We've cleared approximately five acres of land on a 50 acre parcel," said secretary borough administrator Diane Thomas.

"We wanted to keep it a small park."

The park will include a soccer field for children age 12 and under, a softball field, basketball and volleyball courts.

Thomas said a pavilion would also be built for family and community functions.

Thomas said sewer and water lines to the new municipal/recreational building are in the finishing stages and Sewickley Hills council has already begun to hold its monthly meetings there.

"We're trying to get the community out there to volunteer in any way they can," she said.

This could include staining walls, installing floor tiles and other functions.

Once complete, the park will be the trailhead to the Allegheny Land Trust (ALT) property nearby.

ALT is a non-profit organization dedicated to preserving land for its natural beauty and educational aspects and protecting it from development.

Thomas said the park and building complex should be completed by the spring of next year.

Anyone who would like to volunteer is asked to call Thomas at (412) 364-8911 or email the borough at sewickleyhillsborough@comcast.net.

Hard work starting for Friday night games

If history is any indication, last week's quick blast of autumn-like weather was only an aberration.

Because August in western Pennsylvania usually means just one thing — football is just around the corner.

And as high school players pulled on the pads for the first time this week, they were assured of one thing — the traditional sultry, summer weather will likely return before the dreaded two weeks of three-a-day practices come to an end.

But while the football teams may draw the most attention when the season starts in just over two weeks, they are not the only ones toiling in the summer sun in order to get ready for opening day.

The fellow competitors on the soccer, cross country, golf and volleyball teams have also begun the sometimes arduous process of shaking off the summer rust, with their respective seasons scheduled to open within a matter of weeks.

And in fields, parking lots and — in case of rain — gymnasiums across the airport area, members of the marching bands, drill teams, color guards and cheerleading squads are also being put through their paces.

Their commitment is no less sincere, the dedication no less admirable.

After all, they are all nearly as much a part of what makes high school football such an integral part of the fabric of western Pennsylvania as the gridiron teams themselves.

Fall Friday nights are about much more than just the game.

They are about the familiar strains of a school's fight song echoing through the hills and valleys and fervent fans, young and old, streaming into familiar stadiums to cheer on the home team or piling into cars and buses to follow their favorite team on the road.

They are about the unmistakable roar that comes when a team charges through the paper sign held by the cheerleaders and gathers along the sideline in a frenzied huddle, anticipation and excitement filling the air.

There are no doubt those who question this region's fascination — some might say obsession — with high school football.

But for anyone who has spent a Friday night at Chuck Knox Stadium, Joe D. Michela Stadium, Frank Letteri Field or Thomas Birko Stadium, those questions quickly fade.

Healthy or not, the fascination is here to stay.

And we salute all the young men and women who, beginning this week, will be working so hard to carry it on.

HER SAY

Student disappointed by comments

Dear Editor,

This letter is in response to Pastor William Hausen's interview in the Sewickley Herald. It saddened me to read Hausen's presumptions about the people of Sewickley, and in particular, the St. James Catholic community.

As a fifteen-year resident of Sewickley and parishioner at St. James, I have never experienced what Hausen calls "class consciousness" in our church and community.

When I attended St. James School, I never knew that there were children who had more or less money than myself.

Everyone was treated as equal, and we were taught to love our peers as if they were part of our own family; an important Catholic teaching.

In his interview, Hausen states: "I was sad to leave St. James, but I don't think some there are free enough emotionally."

There are countless times when I have seen fellow parishioners that I thought would never show any sort of emotion, cry at the Living Stations of the Cross during Easter, or perhaps when little children would come forward to be blessed at the end of Mass.

At church functions, I have not only participated in, but heard bits and pieces of conversation littered with emotional aspects of a person's life.

Basically, through their faith, St. James Church members are in fact free emotionally.

Our family united by our faith is what ultimately keeps us together. Hausen also felt that those he believed would come to his church from Sewickley are scared or "don't want to leave the country club." Perhaps, maybe those he feels are afraid are the ones that are perfectly comfortable with Catholicism and what it entails and have no reason to leave their faith.

Also, how could leaving a place where I have learned so much, and have met so many new people and grown in my faith be compared to a "country club?"

St. James reminds me more of that best friend's house you had when you were growing up; the one whose door was always open.

In conclusion, Sewickley is a town that I love returning to after weeks at college. The relaxed, friendly atmosphere is just what I need after spending time in the fast-paced, chaotic D.C. area.

Sewickley is the type of place where I'd love to raise my future children and St. James is where I dream of marrying someday.

I wouldn't think of raising my future children anything other than Catholic.

I hope to return to Sewickley and St. James someday to raise a family because in my mind, it will always be home.

Kate Oczypok,
junior at American University

SPEAKING OUT

Chief worried over possible budget cut

Dear Editor:

For the past 32 years, I have handed out turkeys and chickens during our Turkey Bingo fund-raising event, worked weekly bingos, sold tickets, worked golf outings and even cleaned streets to help support our community's volunteer fire department.

Did I forget to mention countless hours of training, and, oh yes, answering a fire call or two when our fund-raising schedule would allow.

In the year 2000, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania allotted $25 million in grant money to assist the volunteer departments (my opinion, long overdue).

This money, roughly $10,000 for each department, has helped everyone in ways far too numerous to imagine.

There is now a new budget on the horizon and guess what our politicians have forgotten to include...that's right, the $25 million for volunteer fire service.

Why is it that our state public officials have elected to ignore the roughly 70,000 volunteers, who, if paid, would cost the taxpayers billions?

In recent memory, every referendum related to volunteer fire service has passed.

Helloooo, politicians, the people appreciate what the volunteers do!!!

I urge everyone to call, write or e-mail their elected state officials to reinstate this grant money in the budget (or even double it!!).

When was the last time we sold raffle tickets to purchase a Penn-Dot truck, a Pennsylvania State Police cruiser or even a Governor's limo?

Sound ridiculous?

What if all the unpaid volunteers in the state just said "We've had enough!?"

IN
WORDS...

By Laura Halleman

Recently I went with my daughter, Sara, 17, and her father to a photography studio to select photographs for her senior pictures.

She already had the initial visit with the studio photographer and our visit to the studio this day was to choose from an array of poses we would be sending to relatives and friends.

Boy, how things have changed since I was a teenager. Gone were the velvet drapes that were thrown across the front of you and the plastic flower that the photographer handed to you at the last minute to clutch to your shoulder as he quickly snapped a photograph before calling "next" to another graduating senior.

There were no clip on ties for the males or hard, plastic combs for last minute touch ups to the hair. And gone were the simulated backdrops of spurious fall leaves or book lined shelves.

This was the real deal. As we entered a comfortably furnished room in the photography studio, the woman assisting us directed us to a couch.

In the corner was a large screen television and she told us that Sara's photos had been downloaded on a computer and we would view them as a slide show on the television prior to choosing the ones we liked best.

Wow, I thought to myself, This is much more detailed than I thought. But okay, this shouldn't be difficult.

The woman dimmed the lights and the three of us settled in. With music playing in the background, the slide show began with images of Sara gracing the screen, one by one. There was Sara in various poses leaning against a tree, relaxing in a hammock with her arms behind her head, gazing reflectively out a window, lying in the grass with her beautiful smile and dark eyes.

As the slide show of the senior photographs continued, the images began to blur. In their place there was Sara as a toddler, giggling as the ocean waves tickled her tiny feet for the first time.

Then waiting eagerly for the school bus to pick her up for her first day of kindergarten, only to turn around and hide behind me as the bus pulled up and then away without her.

There was 7-year-old Sara in the pouring rain and mud from head to toe, kicking the soccer ball in for her first goal.

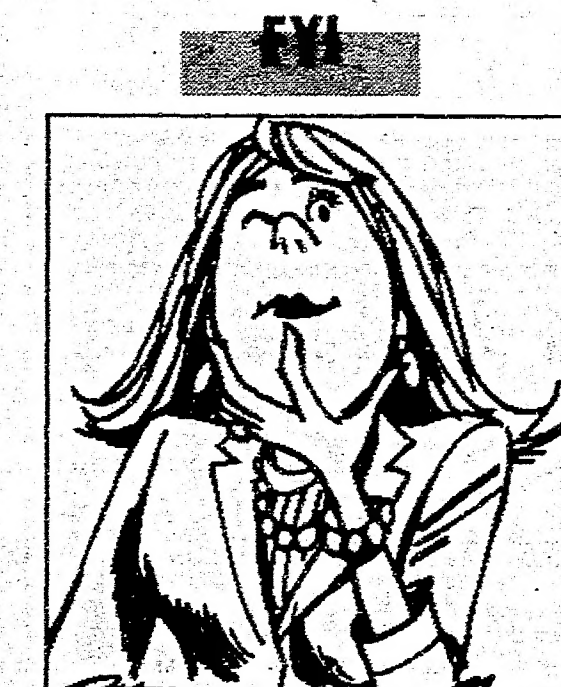

Laughing and holding her own in a water balloon battle with her brother and their friends in the back yard.

And there she was behind the wheel of the car learning how to drive as her dad and I took turns resisting the urge to jump into the driver's seat and grab the wheel to steer for her.

As the concurrent slide shows came to a close, I glanced over at Sara sitting next to me and it was then that I realized something. As a parent there are innumerable moments you feel the urge to grab the wheel and shield your children from what life throws their way.

And then there are times when you realize they're ready to steer through life and trust that you have taught them to make sound choices on their own.

As I watched as Sara looked through the various poses to choose from for her senior photographs, I watched her take the wheel, and was confident in her decisions as I looked on from the back seat, where I would be for her whenever she needed.

Women should be treated differently.

Drs. Richard C. Lorenzo and Zenaida Rosado

Not all women are created equal and not all medical treatments for women should be the same. That's why there are alternatives to hysterectomies and different treatments for incontinence. And for women, there is now an OB-GYN practice close by that represents one of the best choices for women's health care anywhere in the city.

Drs. Lorenzo and Rosado welcome you to their practice with two convenient locations. One office is just a skywalk away from Pittsburgh's Ohio Valley General Hospital and all of its advanced testing facilities. The other is right near the Mall at Robinson.

These two highly trained OB-GYN doctors are now taking new patients and delivering new babies. Evening hours are available. Call now and make an appointment. We think you'll find their treatment plans perfectly suited to your needs.

MT. NEBO

BRITTANY AND Rebecca Hetzell are entering several contests in this year's Mt. Nebo Grange Fair, which their grandmother, Pat Rudy, is helping run.

Grange Fair preparations underway

By Laura Hallemann
 Staff writer

With the annual Mt. Nebo Grange Fair set to begin this Thursday, Pat Rudy has very little down time on her hands.

A Sewickley Hills resident, Rudy is working double duty as the fair manager and contest entrant.

As a child growing up on a farm in State College, Rudy learned how to can vegetables from her mother and grandmother.

"I've canned all of my life," she says. She recalls the days when they would use a huge kettle with a rack inside and the time consuming process.

"It would take us three hours to can eight, one quart jars of vegetables. Now everything is done with a pressure canner and it is much easier but still takes time."

Rudy cans everything from pickles to tomatoes and mincemeat to sauerkraut. She also cans blueberry jam.

"My granddaughters help pick the blueberries off of the bushes," she says.

Rudy and her husband, Carl, are also both avid gardeners. There was a time when the Rudy's children were growing up that they truck farmed a four acre plot of vegetables.

"We would have bushels of potatoes and our daughter, Judy Hetzell, even had a produce route when she was a teenager," says Rudy.

But as the children grew older, the garden became smaller.

This in no way deterred Rudy from passing on to her grandchildren what she had learned from her mother and grandmother.

Rebecca Hetzell, 16 and Brittany Hetzell, 13, enjoy canning with their grandmother and even have several crafts of their own that they enter at the Mt. Nebo Grange Fair.

Along with helping with the canned goods, Rebecca and Brittany have been working on entries for the fair including handmade birdhouses, candy, flower arrangements and photographs that were taken on a recent trip out west that included stops at the Grand Canyon and Las Vegas.

The girls will also be entering the Hershey Cocoa Baking Contest, as well.

If you're going...

The Mt. Nebo Grange Fair will run from Thursday, Aug. 11, through Saturday, Aug. 13, at 125 McAleer Road, Ohio Township.

All entries are due on Wednesday (today) between 4 and 9 p.m. Judges for the fair include home economists, county agents and art teachers.

If entering the Hershey Cocoa Baking Contest, please call 412-741-5407 for rules and regulations.

The fair will be open to the public on Thursday and Friday from noon to 9 p.m. and on Saturday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Special events for children will be held on Thursday at 7 p.m. and Saturday at 10 a.m. Children may enter their pets in a pet show on Saturday at 1 p.m.

A flea market and crafters fair will also be held on Saturday.

During fair hours, the kitchen will serve homemade soups, sandwiches, desserts and beverages.

For further information on contest rules and space rental call 412-741-9763.

RECYCLING

Pippy announces grants for area municipalities

State Sen. John Pippy (R-37) announced the awarding of state grants to help 10 Allegheny County municipalities pay for their recycling programs.

The senator said the amount of each grant was based on the total tons and types of materials recycled in the municipality in 2003.

Among those receiving the grants were Aleppo Township, $506; Leet Township, $851; and Sewickley Borough, $1,303.

The grants were awarded through the Recycling Performance Grant Program, administered by the state Department of Environmental Protection.

The grants are in addition to other funds DEP allocates to municipalities in the effort to reach a statewide goal of recycling 35 percent of all municipal waste.

Pennsylvania's recycling industry leads the nation in employment, payroll and sales numbers.

More than 3,247 recycling and reuse businesses and organizations generate more than $18.4 billion in gross annual sales and provide jobs for more than 81,322 employees at an annual payroll of approximately $2.9 billion.

These businesses add more than $305 million in taxes to the Commonwealth treasury.

WOODLAND

Swim Club holding fund raiser

Woodland Swim Club is kicking off a fund-raising effort to replace its 70-year-old swimming pool, by holding a swim-a-thon.

Members, both children and adults, are being sponsored for the number of laps they can swim during the week of August 7-13.

On the first day, one eight-year-old boy swam 140 laps, which is nearly two miles.

Kids are in friendly competition with each other; one life-guard has set a personal goal of 1,000 laps and adults are being sponsored by their companies.

Woodland, in Edgeworth, was originally a private estate pool. Community members have joined forces several times to save it from being closed down and it is now entirely owned by its 150 members families and is open to all on a space available basis.

As the 70-year-old pool reaches the end of its physical life span, members are again joining together to save Woodland with a major fund-raising campaign to rebuild the facilities.

For more information, call 412-749-9127.

COME ON HOME

Tuskegee Airmen recognized for military service

By Laura Hallemann

Staff writer

In April 1944, 18-year-old Robert "Rocky" Higginbotham was walking down a hallway of what was then known as Sewickley High School.

A sign above a door stating "Aviation Cadet Exam - Now Being Given" piqued Higginbotham's interest.

Glancing in, he saw a "roomful of white boys" taking the exam. "I decided then and there that I was going to take that exam so I walked in, completed it and passed," says Higginbotham.

After the test Higginbotham was elated. "I saw these men standing at the front of the room in their white uniforms and thought 'man, those uniforms and gold pins are sharp looking and I'll be sharp looking too,'" Higginbotham recalls with a laugh.

His wish was short-lived when he approached the men and a sergeant looked at him and said, "No, you can't be with us. They don't take black people."

"I felt very badly about the whole thing, but that was the times and it just made me want to succeed that much more," he says.

It was this tenacity and spirit of Higginbotham, 79, and seven other Tuskegee Airmen from the Sewickley area that brought nearly 300 relatives, friends and local dignitaries to a luncheon last week in honor of their achievements.

Sponsored by the Daniel B. Matthews Society and held at the St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Sewickley, the luncheon was part of the society's effort to document the history of people and events of the African American community throughout the Ohio Valley area.

Prior to WWII, the U.S. Army Air Corps (AAF) did not allow African Americans to join the AAF in any capacity due to the color of their skin.

This racist ideology was partially thwarted when, in 1940, President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered the AAF to build an "all-Negro flying unit."

In 1941 the AAF began a segregated program in Alabama to train African Americans as military pilots on Morton Field near the Tuskegee Institute, founded in 1881 by Booker T. Washington.

What followed was the inception of the African American 99th Pursuit Squadron in which all eight Tuskegee Airmen from Sewickley served.

At the luncheon, keynote speaker Mitchell Higginbotham, 84, older brother of Robert Higginbotham and Tuskegee Airman, addressed the crowd. "My country 'tis of thee. Sweet land of liberty ... that land wasn't always so sweet.

There were many times when it was bittersweet," he reflected. He added that, although there was a certain "nostalgia" about growing up in Sewickley, it wasn't always pleasant, with African Americans not permitted in the YMCA or movie theater.

A 1938 graduate of Sewickley High School, Mitchell Higginbotham was one of six African American students in his graduating class of 138.

They were not permitted to attend their own prom, but decided otherwise on their own, says Higginbotham.

"We walked in there that

EVENTS

Old Economy Village holding music series

Old Economy Village 1830's Orchestra presents its Summer Music Series on Saturdays, Aug. 20 and 28.

Concerts will feature a live vocal performance by the Old Economy Village Singers.

Musical performances will be offered during Historic Site tours at 1:00 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. as a part of the Orchestra's Summer Music Series.

A printed program for each concert will be available to guests in the same format that Dr. Muller printed on his press for the Harmonists' 1827 - 1831 concert series.

Tour groups will begin their visit with an orientation video and will then proceed down to the Feast Hall for a fifteen minute concert.

The concert is free with the price of a Historic Tour admission. Adults (18 years and older), $7.00; Youth (6 years - 17 years), $5.00; Senior Citizens (60 years and older), $6.00; Under 6, no charge.

The Orchestra will also play in the Historic Garden area between concerts, weather permitting.

Visitors are welcome to listen in as the vocalists hold a 2:00 p.m. rehearsal in the Feast Hall. Those on a self-guided tour are also invited to attend and enjoy the open rehearsals.

For details, call 724-266-4500.

Tasting event

As part of its campaign to reduce premature births, the March of Dimes will hold a tasting event showcasing local chefs at the Edgeworth Club in Sewickley on Monday, Sept. 26.

Chefs will hail from the Edgeworth Club, the Sewickley Cafe and Shannopin Country Club.

The event will allow patrons to taste samples of dishes by local chefs, and a live auction will follow.

The March of Dimes, founded in 1921 in response to the polio epidemic, has raised money for decades to fund research and promote awareness to help counter various infant maladies.

The Sewickley event is part of the national campaign focus on premature birth.

For reservations or to participate as a chef, call Strong at 412-391-3193 or write astrong@marchofdimes.com.

Seminar

On Wednesday, September 7, the American Association of Individual Investors will sponsor another educational seminar for its ongoing "Getting Started" educational series for beginning investors.

This meeting will focus on the online resources at the Microsoft MSN Money Web site, which allows investors to research specific stocks.

This free session, open to the public, will deal with the basic use of the MSN Money Central Web site.

The meeting will be held in the upstairs meeting room of Sewickley Public Library from 7:00 to 8:30 P.M.

The Sewickley Library is located at 500 Thorn Street, Sewickley, Pa.

Boutique &amp; luncheon

The Auxiliary of Sewickley Valley Hospital will be holding its annual "Unique Boutique and Luncheon" on Saturday, November 12, at the Edgeworth Club in Sewickley.

This event brings together a variety of shops with unique gift and clothing items for a day of one-stop shopping.

The event is held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., with lunch between the hours of 11:30 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. There will be a variety of auction items as well.

Tickets are $25, which includes entry to the shopping area and lunch. Proceeds from the luncheon will benefit the Emergency Department renovation at Sewickley Valley Hospital.

For details, contact Ruth Lessman at 412-741-2763.

Auditions

Pittsburgh CLO is holding 2005-2006 scholarship auditions on Wednesday, Aug. 17, at the Academy of Musical Theater.

Students age 10 to high school seniors may audition in dance, voice or acting.

To schedule an appointment, call 412-281-2234 ext. 2.

night and you could hear a pin drop. I thought we'd set precedence but it didn't happen, not right away. The matter of racial segregation was so ingrained in our society."

In his speech, Higginbotham eluded to the fact that there was still more to be done regarding race relations.

"Perhaps (American Legion) Post 4 can combine with (American Legion) Post 450. Maybe that is possible, I don't know, but I do know there is so much that can be done if we all do it together," he said.

Even as a pilot for the 99th Squadron, Higginbotham took the lead in March 1946 when, along with 104 other African American pilots, he was arrested when they chose to enter an "all white officers club" rather than the "colored officers club" at Freeman Field, Ind.

The group of men was also instructed to sign a document demanding they would never again attempt integration of the club.

They refused and were eventually released after the national Black Press got hold of the story, led primarily by the Pittsburgh Courier.

By the end of WWII, 992 men had graduated from pilot training at Tuskegee, 450 of whom were sent overseas for combat assignment.

During the same period, approximately 150 lost their lives while in training or on combat flights, according to a Tuskegee Airmen Web site.

Mitchell Higginbotham was a pilot with the 99th Squadron as well as the 477th Bomber Group. After the war he earned a degree in labor relations and is now the official ambassador of goodwill for the Tuskegee Airmen.

Robert Higginbotham, also a pilot with the 99th Squadron, went on to become an orthopedic surgeon and was the first black intern at Sewickley Valley Hospital.

The brothers live in California.

William "Billy" Johnston, 79, who was unable to attend the luncheon due to illness, had a successful career as a corporate pilot and FAA instructor.

Posthumously honored were James Addison, Frank Hailstock Jr., William Curtis, Curtis Branch and William Gilliam.

SERVICE MEN

Rep. Mustio looking for WWII veterans to honor

Rep. Mark Mustio (R-Allegheny County) is looking for information on World War II veterans living in the 44th Legislative District to recognize them for their service to our country.

Mustio is honoring America's 'Greatest Generation' because of the number of WWII veterans we lose with each passing day.

"My desire is to see that every single World War II veteran in the 44th Legislative District is recognized."

Local WWII veterans are asked to contact one of Mustio's district offices and provide the following information: name, home address, and phone number along with rank, branch of service, and time of service.

Mustio's legislative district consists of the following communities: Aleppo Township, Ben Avon Heights Borough, Collier Township (Wards 01 and 02), Edgeworth Borough, Findlay Township.

Haysville Borough, Kilbuck Township, Moon Township, North Fayette Township, Ohio Township, Osborne Borough, Robinson Township (Districts 7, 8, and 9).

Sewickley Borough, Sewickley Heights Borough and Sewickley Hills Borough.

Mustio would also like to urge anyone who knows a family member or friend who should be recognized to contact his offices with the veteran's information.

His office is located in Sewickley at 519 Broad St., Calls can be directed to 412-749-4727.

DOG DAYS OF SUMMER

CHILDREN AT Henle Park in Leetsdale were treated to a demonstration by search and rescue dogs last week. The canines are part of a group called C.A.E.S.A.R. that is made up of highly trained search and rescue personnel. Each year the group answers between 50 and 60 calls. Above, handler Gerri Miller shows how her dog, Reise, a German shepherd, can track a scent. At left, Miller and Reise take a break from duty with friends, Jack, a yellow lab, and his owner Cindy Braden.

Alphabet of fun at Nemaquin Woodlands Resort

By Elaine Eglon

Writer

Resort — a place you go to for several days or more — far away.

Right.

Not necessarily.

The name might be Nemaquin Woodlands Resort but it isn't far away — just 61 miles south of Pittsburgh in Farmington, Pa., and you can go just for the day.

So get the family into the car early in the morning and head to the mountains for a one-day vacation — an escape, a reprieve, a refresher from the hectic world of today.

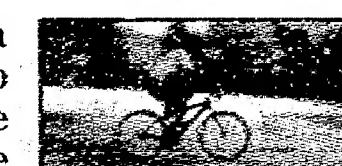

From A to Z there is more than enough to do to take home plenty of memories, even if you don't have time to stay at the elegant Chateau LaFayette, the Tudor-style Lodge or the townhouses for several days.

A Art collection of Joe Hardy, owner, includes paintings, sculptures, memorabilia, Tiffany lamps and windows, cars and even planes. Tours are offered daily. Also Nemaquin Galleries displays and sells the works of internationally-known artists.

B Biking is a great way to navigate the many trails at the 2,800-acre resort. Bikes can be rented at Nemaquin's Adventure Center.

C Croquet court across from the Lodge is open daily. Equipment to play is available in the nearby Activities Center.

D Dining options are many. For lunch or dinner, The Tavern offers a pub-like setting or you can dine side-walk style to enjoy the outdoor view and the aquarium. For American contemporary cuisine, try the Caddy Shack clubhouse at the Links golf course. And for a more up-market dinner experience, reservations can be made for the Golden Trout in the Lodge, LaTrec's French bistro at the Chateau LaFayette, or at Aqueous, the progressive American cuisine in the resort's Falling Rock hotel.

THE SPA at Nemacolin Woodlands Resort.

Nemacolin Woodlands

Equestrian Center is for those who love horses and ponies. A guide accompanies those on horseback; smaller kids can have a 10-minute pony ride for $20. Guided trail rides are $60 per person for an hour-long ride.

Fitness Center in Woodlands Spa has activities ranging from swimming in the indoor pool to yoga classes, use of exercise equipment. There is no charge for those who have an appointment for a spa service.

Golf on either of the resort's two courses — the Links and Mystic Rock. Links offers 9 or 18 holes of play; Mystic Rock is a full 18 holes.

Heritage Court is a treat for shoppers looking for something different. Resort wear, eclectic collectibles, signature accessories are among the offerings.

Ice cream at P.J.'s Ice Cream & Pizza Parlor is a must. In the 50s-themed setting, you can slip back in time, enjoying soda fountain favorites and music from the jukebox.

Jumping and jiving are the order of weekend nights at Diamond Lil's. Entertainment begins at 9 p.m.

Kayaking is at Lake P.J. near the Links golf course. The cost is $10 per half-hour. Paddleboats and canoes are also an option.

Look back in history at the Peter J. Magerko Gun Museum. On display are more than 600 antique firearms in the museum, housed in its own building near Woodlands World outdoor store. Admission is free.

Mini golf, a fun activity for all ages, is at Fallingbrook Miniature Golf Course. Cost is $8 above 12 years of age; $6 below.

Nature and all its beauty inspire the spirit at Nemacolin. The mountains, trees, flowers are a feast for the eyes. For the soul, the House of Meditation is worth a visit. Sitting in one of the four pews, you can hear the sounds of nature outside the rustic chapel, which has its own beautiful setting.

OF NOTE

Grace Church names Whitacre assisting priest

Father John A. Porter, Rector of Grace Church in Sewickley Valley, announced the appointment of the Reverend Doctor Rodney Whitacre, as new assisting priest.

Father Whitacre graduated from Gordon College, where he met his wife, Margaret.

He attended Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary. He was awarded his Ph.D. from Cambridge University in England and has an Honorary Doctor of Divinity by Cranmer Theological House.

Father Whitacre is a biblical scholar and New Testament Professor at Trinity Episcopal School for Ministry in Ambridge.

He has published eight books and is currently working on a book to help introduce Greek to New Testament scholars.

Father Whitacre, lives in Sewickley with his wife, who is a science teacher in the Beaver School District.

Mrs. Whitacre is also the organist at Grace Episcopal Church in the Sewickley Valley.

APPOINTMENT

DiAndreth named to HEARTH board

Dr. Matthew DiAndreth has been elected to the Board of Directors at HEARTH, a non-profit housing organization in the North Hills with the mission to create a continuum of care that empowers families to become independent, self-sufficient, and adequately housed.

In addition to his involvement at HEARTH, he has served in the U.S. Navy as a dental officer for several years.

DiAndreth owns and operates three Endodontic practices in the Pittsburgh area.

He resides in Sewickley, Pa., with his wife, Carmela, and daughter, Angela.

The Healing Touch.

Patients agree, skill and experience make for better rehabilitation.

Rehabilitation, especially post-operative, requires a facility and a professional staff that can get you back to life as normal — or as close as possible. So when the nation's leading independent company for measuring customer satisfaction in healthcare — Avatar International Inc. — compared us against other good hospitals, the results were gratifying. In every category, patients surveyed rated our Rehabilitation Services not just one of the best locally and regionally, but one of the best nationwide. Our therapists were rated among the highest in the country for their skill and experience, their personal attentiveness, and their concern in explaining all procedures and treatments. Seems that patients know that when it comes to bones mending faster or knees, hips, and backs healing better — the human touch can work wonders. Not referred here? You can still choose to come here.

WHAT'S GOING ON

CPR classes held at Heritage

CPR classes are held on a regular basis at Heritage Valley Health System.

An Infant/Child CPR class will be held Monday, Aug. 22, at 6:30 p.m., in Conference Rooms 1 and 2 on the fourth floor at Sewickley Valley Hospital.

Attendees will get a review of infant and child safety and learn how to perform CPR and how to handle a choking emergency. A $20 fee includes a pocket mask.

To register for the class, call Mary Carolyn Nash at 412-749-7120, or e-mail your name, address, phone number and date of the class to mnash@hvhs.org.

Summer workshop

Parents looking for a way to nudge middle and high school students out of their "summer daze" can find help with Laughlin Center's "Study Smarter, Not Harder" workshop.

The workshop is being offered the week of Aug. 15 with a middle school session from 10 a.m. to noon and a high school session from 1 - 3 p.m.

The program addresses many areas such test preparation, organization, listening skills and reading for different purposes.

Bill Barno teaches the week-long workshops that includes goal setting, note taking, test-taking and memory skills.

During the school year, Laughlin Center offers one-on-one study skills support in its popular "Study and Organizational Skills" program.

"The program works because students can relate the techniques we are teaching directly to their individual classroom work and their homework," said Barno.

For more information, call Judy Allison at 412-741-4087.

New moms

Expectant mothers are invited to Heritage Valley Health System's maternity classes that can help moms and family members prepare for upcoming life changes.

Classes are being offered in August at Sewickley Valley Hospital (SVH). They are free unless otherwise noted.

A maternity center tour for grandparents only is scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 17, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at SVH.

To register for SVH education programs, call 412-749-4270.

DINOSAURS

DRAGON HUNTING: Finding Fossils in China was the topic of an interactive program for children at Sewickley Library. Pat Laemmle, above right, from the Carnegie Museum of Natural History, entertained the young audience with facts about dinosaurs and their habitats. She used fossils found in China throughout the past century as a teaching tool and also explained to children that the Chinese were the first to find dinosaurs. And, that the Chinese were the ones who created dragons, which exist only in stories and myths. This program was one of two about dinosaurs and mythical dragons sponsored by the Village Garden Club of Sewickley.

Spice merchants crossed dangerous deserts and treacherous oceans to obtain rare spices like those being exhibited in the Rodef Shalom Biblical Botanical Garden, 4905 Fifth Ave., Pittsburgh.

"Spices and Fragrances Through 5000 Years" is the latest display at the Oakland gardens. It features plants with ties to those used since biblical times and earlier.

All are enchanting since ancient Egypt and Israel times, and some play a major role in world religions, such as frankincense, myrrh, cassia and myrtle.

The more than 100 biblical plants within the garden, made in the shape of the Holy Land, is a colorful oasis in the heart of Pittsburgh.

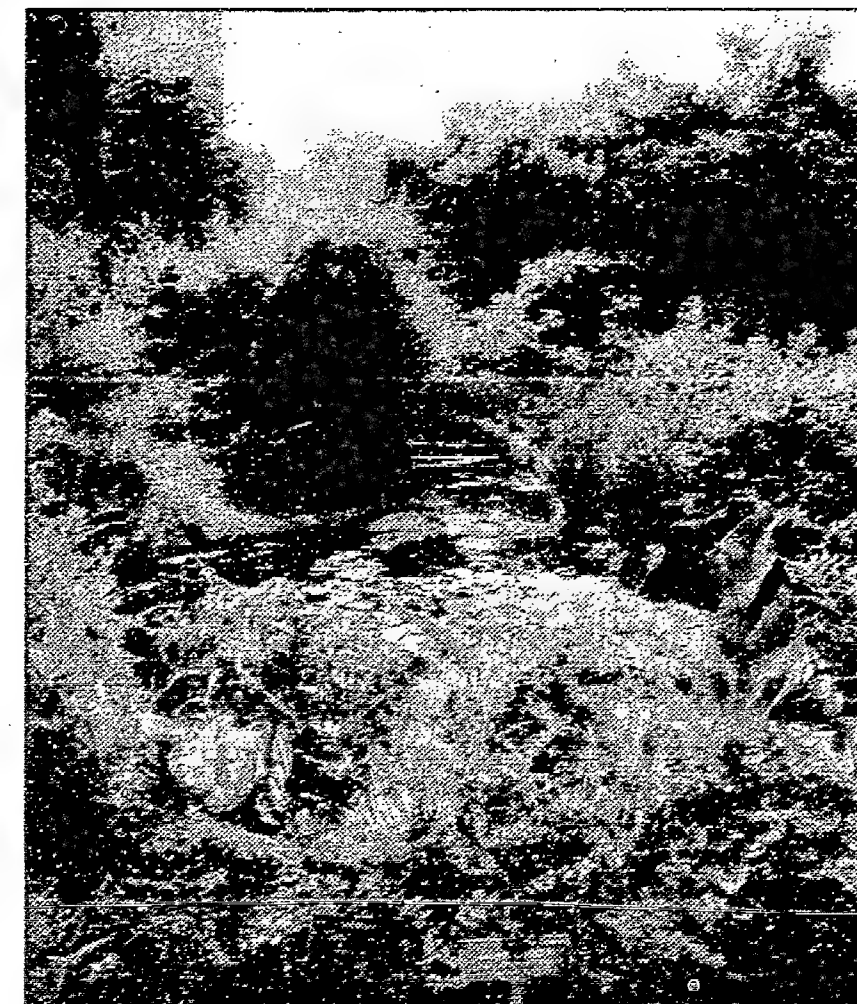

Open through Thursday, Sept. 15, the garden can be toured Sunday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Wednesday evening, 7 to 9 p.m.; and Saturday, noon to 1 p.m.

No admission is charged. The site is handicapped accessible and can be seen on the Web at www.biblicalgardenpittsburgh.org.

Thought for the Week

Of all God's gifts to man, laughter is one of the most subtle and is one of the most precious. It has neither nationality nor religion. As an equalizer, it has no equal. Even science, which can do so many things, cannot teach us to laugh. It has been said that mirth is from God, dullness from the devil. When we laugh we agree with God that all is good...

It would be a pretty inhuman world without laughter, but it would be a pretty frivolous world without serious thought, meditation and occasional weeping. Yes, one of the most wonderful gifts God has given man is the gift of humor; the ability to laugh and see the funny side to things.

Humor can take the antagonism out of differences. It can promote a congenial atmosphere. It opens the line of communication and breaks down barriers. Some people can't express humor even though they appreciate it, just as some people appreciate good music even though they can't carry a tune...

Laughter is not the final solution to life's problems, but it eases many a difficult situation. A very wise person once commented that the most utterly lost of all days, is that in which you have not once laughed...

Have you had your laugh today?

HOLE-IN-ONE

Sewickley girl makes great shot at Woodlands

17-year-old spina bifida victim stuns crowd with first Woodlands hole-in-one

By Jerry Clark

Sports writer

The sound of a club head meeting a golf ball echoed throughout the Woodlands Foundation's "No Handicap" golf course, and Libby Powers thought she had connected with a regular shot.

This sound of the ball ripping through the air was followed by the sound of the ball rattling around in the cup, and then thunderous applause. It was then Powers sensed she had done something big.

She sunk a hole-in-one, on her first shot, on the first hole and was consequently the first golfer to ever accomplish the feat on the Woodlands course.

"I thought I had hit any old shot," said Powers, who has been playing golf for only a year and a half and got her start at Woodlands. "I heard clapping and cheers throughout the place."

Her accomplishment happened on a big stage, as Powers sunk the shot at the Woodlands Mazeroski Sports Camp for youth with disabilities.

Powers suffers from spina bifida, a disability that makes walking difficult.

She never pictured herself on the links. Powers played lacrosse at Quaker Valley until her sophomore year, but became interested in golf through a program at the Woodlands Foundation.

But it was not an easy transition. She took lessons at the Woodlands in the fall and worked through the winter at Neville Island Sports Dome to improve her game.

The extra effort over the winter did the trick, as Powers was able to reach a goal she didn't even know she had, a hole-in-one.

As if making history wasn't its own reward, United States Amateur Women's Golf Champion Carol Semple Thompson was there to witness the shot.

Thompson, named First Woman of Golf this year, was visiting the Woodlands and conducting a golf clinic for kids with various disabilities.

Thompson said Powers was in her group and she purposely made Libby hit last because she is a pretty good golfer. Because she was last, others in her group teased her a bit. It was Powers, however, who had the last laugh.

"Libby was thrilled and a little shocked," Thompson said. "Everyone on the course saw it, and they all cheered."

"Libby is the nicest young woman and she was clearly so happy."

All of the holes on the course are shorter in nature, ranging from 31 to 67 yards, to offer golfers — many of which are in wheelchairs or on crutches — easier mobility around the course.

"I have great admiration for the Woodlands and for what they do for these young kids," Thompson said. "I am very impressed with all of them."

Skoglund earns collegiate honors, makes NESCAC All-Academic Team

Story contributed

Marisa Skoglund, a Trinity College senior, was one of four Trinity swimmers and divers selected to the 2004-05 New England Small College Athletic Conference Winter All-Academic Team.

Each student-athlete selected for the team must be a starter or key reserve for a varsity team while maintaining at least a 3.35 grade-point average.

Skoglund competed primarily in the breaststroke, butterfly and medley events for the Bantams.

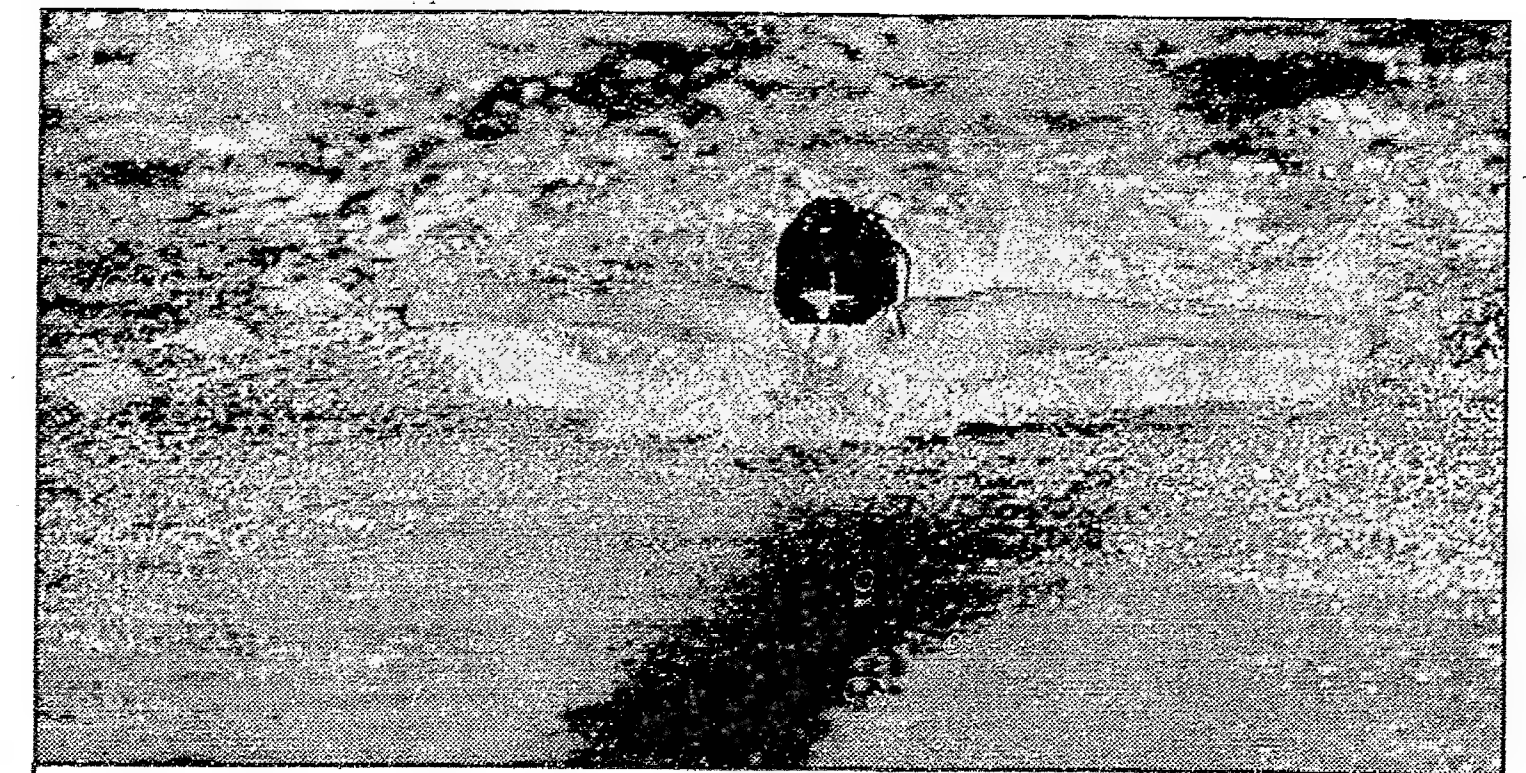

She posted season-best times of 23.25 in the 50-yard breaststroke, 1:18.33 in the 100-yard breaststroke (career best),

2:50.88 in the 200-yard breaststroke, 37.87 in the 50-yard butterfly, 1:12.25 in the 100-yard butterfly, 1:12.28 in the 100-yard individual medley, 2:28.56 in the 200-yard IM, 5:25.10 in the 400-yard IM and 6:02.33 in the 500-yard freestyle.

Skoglund's career-best times of 10:36.44 in the 1,000-yard free and 17:59.49 in the 1,650-yard free are both the sixth best in college history.

Skoglund, a Sewickley native and graduate of Ellis High School, graduated from Trinity in May with a degree in political science.

She is the daughter of Pat Molano and Jeff Skoglund.

DESIGN YOUR TRIBUTE TOWEL

Double Yoi! Myron, We'll Miss You!

Myron Cope, beloved Pittsburgh Steelers broadcaster, is also the creator of the legendary Terrible Towel. Earlier this summer, Myron announced his retirement after 35 years in the broadcast business. Now kids can send a special message to Myron to thank him for all the memories.

The Western Pennsylvania Sports Museum at the Heinz History Center, in conjunction with Gateway Newspapers, wants kids to design their very own TRIBUTE TOWEL. You can color, paint, use ink, or whatever you'd like to design and/or write a personal message to Myron, saluting him for making history in Pittsburgh.

Kids, cut out your Tribute Towel and bring it to the new Sports Museum for FREE ADMISSION (with a paid admission from a parent or guardian who must be present) now through Monday, Aug. 15, 2005. The Sports Museum offers tons of cool summertime fun for kids of all ages and will feature all Tribute Towels in a special display inside the Museum. And at the end of the summer, the Sports Museum will hold a Tribute Towel event — with special guests — for all kids who have been a part of the project. Prizes will be awarded.

UPCOMING

Outing benefits Medical Center

The Medical Center Foundation and Tito Francona will host the 16th Annual Tito Francona Golf Classic, Monday, Aug. 22.

The annual golf outing was first started in 1989 by former Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Cardinals star, John "Tito" Francona, in memory of his late wife, Birdie, who was treated for cancer at The Medical Center, Beaver.

After suffering cardiac arrest and undergoing heart surgery himself, Tito asked that the event benefit both the Oncology and Cardiology programs at The Medical Center, Beaver.

Since its inception, the event has raised over $1.4 million to support these two clinical programs at the center.

This year's outing will be held at two new locations: Olde Stonewall Golf Club and Connoquenessing Country Club in Elwood City, Pa.

Olde Stonewall Golf Club has been selected by Golf Magazine as one of the top ten new public courses in 1999 and currently ranked in the Top 100 public courses in the US by Golf Digest. All of the four-somes at Olde Stonewall are sold out; however, a limited number of foursomes are available at Connoquenessing Country Club, located adjacent to Olde Stonewall.

Connoquenessing Country Club is an 18-hole golf course nestled within the rolling hills of Western Pennsylvania.

Connoquenessing is the home course of Francona.

A round of golf will be followed by a reception and dinner at Shakespeare's Restaurant at Olde Stonewall Golf Club.

For more information on the Tito Francona Golf Outing, call 724-728-9111 or visit the Heritage Valley Health System web site at www.heritagevalley.org.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Cassoff finishes first with 70 at Dick's Championship

Linsly graduate wins invitation to Player of the Year tournament
By Jon Paul Creese
Sports editor

Geordie Cassoff's golf game is methodically meticulous, the way he carefully eyes his shots, the finesse with which he directs his lithe frame. His swing, on the other hand, is comparably lumbering and erratic. His labored form resembles a that of a beginner, rather than a polished, competitive performer.

Still, one thing marks his game, success.

"I don't know if I should say this," said Wayne Uber, an assistant director for the Kings/Pepsi Tri-State PGA Junior Golf Tournament, who also noted Cassoff's ability to play very well, "but he has a very unorthodox swing."

Uber knows 17-year-old

Cassoff well after years of over-seeing the popular junior tournament that attracts youths from 14 to 18 years of age. Cassoff, a former QV student, has competed in numerous tournaments throughout the years and has a reputation for being both a competitive golfer and one that perplexes with his style.

"He ends up in the hole," mused Ken Oleska, also an assistant director for the tournament, of Cassoff's unusual swing. "You wonder how he did it."

As for Cassoff, he does not seem to mind that his swing does not necessarily look pretty, after the contemporary fashion. He shoots in the low 70s consecutively, and he does it his way.

"I'm a self-taught player," he says. "I play pretty much by feel."

Of working to "improve" his swing, Cassoff decidedly says, "I think it's more rewarding to do it yourself."

And the rewards have been

Geordie Cassoff

Accomplishment:

Cassoff took first place in the Dick's Sporting Goods Junior Golf Championship with a score of 70 after a shootout at Hillcrest Country Club.

I improved a lot from last year," Cassoff said, noting Diamond Run was not one of his better performances.

He had trouble early on, struggling to stay on par for the first four holes, then ran into bigger trouble on the tenth, a par 4.

"I hit a three-wood off the tee; it kicked down into the rough against a tree," he said. "I thought I had a chance of getting it to the green."

Cassoff ended up on a hillside in thick grass and two-putted for a triple bogey.

"It was just poor course management," he reflected.

But the Linsly High School graduate made up the swings with three birdies, all on par 5s, barely missing a five-foot eagle on the ninth hole.

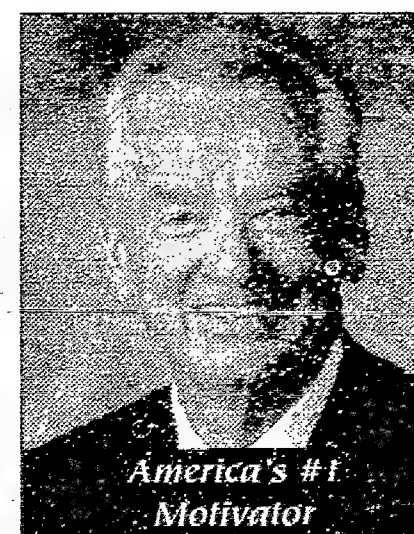

Cassoff plans to attend Furman University and hopes to play on the golf team.

His major is yet undetermined, but graduated Linsly with a 4.0 grade point average.

REAL ESTATE TODAY

Everyone dreams of buying the perfect home. And why not? You'll never find what you want if you don't first know what you want! You'll also never find your dream home if you insist on living in a dream world. In other words, don't be unrealistic or unwilling to compromise.

Unleash Your Potential!

Betty Moraca
ARR. CRE. CRS. CRI

All homes - even newly built ones - require some work to make them perfect for you. There are several ways to update that make a dramatic difference when you've found a home in the right location at the right price. An open mind helps you make your decision by allowing more possibilities.

You may not find all the right criteria - price, condition and location - in one single home. Compromising on any of these factors can result in a very satisfying purchase. Negotiation is a normal part of any real estate transaction, especially if you've found a great home a little further out than you planned, or a home in need of improvements that happens to be located in your perfect neighborhood.

Real estate agents well understand that communities rely on revitalization. Buyers willing to improve their property keep towns and cities thriving. Pride of ownership helps homes in these communities gain in value, and helps the owners gain in equity. That is the true potential behind creativity and compromise, so don't be afraid to explore it!

Irvington offers spacious floor plan, contemporary flair

Families who enjoy entertaining are sure to appreciate the Irvington's flowing spacious floor plan.

Arched windows and a hipped roof give a contemporary flavor to this rambling, single-story home that is easily adaptable for wheelchair accessibility.

Natural light is abundant in all of the gathering spaces. It spills into the entry through sidelights and a transom, while a couple more transoms cap banks of windows in the dining room.

Windows fill most of the vaulted living room's front wall as well. The lower windows are crowned by a dramatic assemblage of half-round, quarter-round and rectangular sets of panes. Bookcases flank a gas fireplace centered on one wall.

Three arched openings give the partially octagonal dining room an airy, open feeling. The kitchen and main bathroom are also octagonal in theme.

Laundry appliances are only steps away in the deep pass through space that links kitchen and garage. This area, too, is richly supplied with counters, cabinets and a sink.

Luxuries in the Irvington's master suite include: a sun-washed sitting area, semi-private covered patio, and a deep walk-in closet.

The private bathroom boasts a walk-in shower, spa tub, dual vanity, and private toilet. Both of the secondary bedrooms have direct access to their own bathrooms.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $25 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Dept. W, Eugene, OR 97402.

Please specify the Irvington 30-493 and include a return address.

SEWICKLEY REAL ESTATE

SINGLE-FLOOR LIVING

Adrian has informal gathering spaces

Slender columns mounted on brick veneer bases immediately catch the eye.

Other beguiling Craftsman accents on the contemporary ranch-style Adrian include single-hung, multipaned windows, and textured shake siding filling the apexes of both front gables.

The arched openings that face each other across the foyer lead into a traditional living room and dining room. Both have wide windows facing the street.

The living room is fully enclosed, but the dining room is linked to the kitchen. A pocket door allows total separation when desired.

Informal family gathering spaces are immediately to the rear of the more formal rooms up front.

Standing at the built-in range, you need never be cut off from family activities. You have a full view of everything going on in the family room, nook, patio and rear yard, plus you can chat with people in all of those inner areas.

The kitchen's walk-in pantry is the only part of the kitchen that is walled off.

Sliders in the nook access a partially covered patio that could easily be screened to keep out warm-weather bugs.

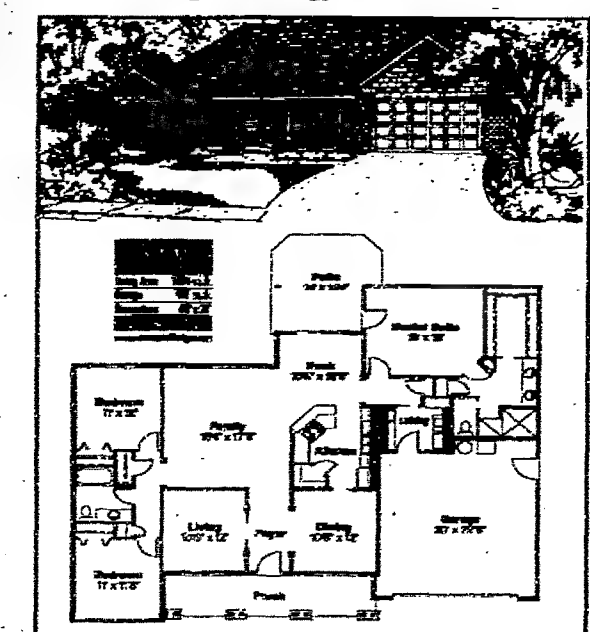

An arched opening at the juncture of the kitchen and nook leads to the master suite, a linen closet, and a large pass-through utility room that connects with the two-car garage.

Cabinets line both sides, and the long folding counter has a built-in utility sink.

Master suite amenities in the Adrian include an exceptionally deep walk-in closet, double vanity, walk-in shower, and totally private toilet.

An arched opening in the family room leads to two more bedrooms on the opposite side of the home, where they share use of the central bathroom.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $25 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Dept. W, Eugene, OR 97402.

Please specify the Adrian 30-511 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring more than 400 home plans is available for $15.

— Building America's future —

(NAPSI)-Construction workers are retiring in large numbers, according to the National Association of Home Builders, as they get older-the average construction worker is in his or her mid-50s.

According to one estimate, the construction industry ought to be adding about 225,000 workers a year to offset attrition and meet labor demands.

In 2002, year-end housing starts totaled 1.7 million, the highest level in 16 years, and issuance of housing permits in 2002 was at its highest level since 1986.

The industry has fallen 65,000 to 80,000 workers short of these hiring goals in recent years.

As a result, the home-building industry projects a shortage of 800,000 workers nationwide by 2010, mostly in specialties such as carpentry, electrical, plumbing, masonry and heating/air-conditioning.

To help fight this shortage, SkillsUSA, a national organization serving more than 250,000 high school and college students and professional members who are enrolled in training programs in technical, skilled and service occupations, holds annual National Leadership and Skills Conferences (NLSC) to showcase career and technical education students.

With programs that help establish industry standards for job skill training in the classroom, SkillsUSA prepares America's high performance workers. It provides quality education experiences for students in leadership, teamwork, citizenship and character development, while building and reinforcing self-confidence, positive work attitudes and communication skills.

Programs include local, state and national competitions for students to demonstrate their occupational and leadership skills.

Companies across the country, such as Home Depot, recognize the importance of the SkillsUSA motto, preparing for leadership in the world of work, and views supporting SkillsUSA as an investment in America's future workforce.

To help prepare SkillsUSA students to enter the workforce, Home Depot sponsors a career fair for the SkillsUSA students as well as competitions on the local and national levels.

To learn more about this organization, go to www.skillsusa.org.

Meeting your goals made easier

(NAPSI)-Think and achieving it, setting a life is impossible? It's changing goal, not.

Studies show that people meet and stick to their goals far more often if the goal is simply written down and put in unexpected places where it can be seen throughout the day.

The Post-it® Super Sticky Notes Roadmap to Change: Ready, Set, Go...Stick to It! encourages the use of written reminder notes as a proven method for users to set and achieve life enhancing goals.

The Web-based program, created by renowned psychologist Cynthia Green, Ph.D., provides a goal achievement tool kit in four easy steps-Ready, Set, Go, Stick to It.

Ready is the first section of the Roadmap, designed to help you identify a realistic goal. For example, Dr. Green suggests jotting down your reasons for wanting to attain a goal on a 4x6 Post-it® Super Sticky Note and carrying it with you for several days.

Set involves the creation of a personalized goal Roadmap. Dr. Green offers suggested tips for laying out a step-by-step itinerary to reach your goal, including enlisting a support team, gathering motivational tools of all kinds, and listing rewards to give yourself when a step is completed.

When you've set the steps to ward your goal, you're ready to Go!

It has been proven that writing your goals down makes you more likely to achieve them.

— Tomatoes — Beyond the beefsteak —

By Daniel Aspell

If you've ever grown fruits or vegetables in your garden, it's almost a sure bet that tomatoes were among your first crop.

Easy to grow, colorful and versatile, the tomato is given more acreage in home gardens than any other edible plant.

But while most of us are familiar with the homegrown staples, like California Early Girls, Beef Steak and Big Boy tomatoes, there are dozens of tasty varieties with tantalizing differences in flavor.

If you've never grown tomatoes, you may not realize what you're missing. Not only are they a fun, low-maintenance crop, but there's new evidence that they may be among the most healthful.

While they are loaded with vitamins A and C and potassium, a Harvard study suggests that lycopene, the pigment that gives tomatoes their red color, may prevent cancer in the lungs, prostate and pancreas. Five servings of fresh tomatoes are recommended as a weekly addition to the diet.

Tomato expert Chuck Wyatt describes the history of modern tomato culture on the Web site www.heirloomtomatoes.net.

He laments that tomatoes had to be developed to withstand mechanical harvesting while still green, suffer long road trips and have an extended shelf life.

While creating a stronger tomato, each of these hybrids, he states, "taste much like the cardboard boxes in which it is shipped." For a really flavorful tomato, he insists that a homegrown heirloom is the true answer, and he claims to have tried over 400.

Here is a list of some of the highly recommended heirloom varieties, available at Chuck Wyatt's site, and also at www.seedman.com. Expect to pay between $1.50 and $2.50 for a packet of 10 to 20 seeds.

• If you like your tomatoes large, try the Dinnerplate, with flavorful, firm flesh that can weigh close to three pounds each.

If that's still too small, the Giant Belgium variety can reach close to five pounds, with pink, intensely sweet fruit.

For a dish of fried green tomatoes, you may not do better than Aunt Ruby's German Green, a big (18 ounces) tomato that will mature in around 75 days.

• For cooking, the Amish Paste has been used for canning and sauces for at least 100 years.

Sausage tomatoes, which resemble banana peppers when mature, are also great for canning and make an excellent ketchup.

If you like your canned tomatoes a bit sweeter, try the German Plum or the Howard German.

• If your summer dinners feature chips with homemade salsa, you'll want to try the Green Mexican Salsa tomato-lo and the Toma Verde tomato.

Both are easy to grow and mature quickly, with a tangy flavor. Blend them into a salsa with a low-acid, mild Golden Boy and a Marisol Red for a truly complex flavor.

• For that slice to top off a grilled burger, try the Old Virginia, Super Sioux or Goliath for a firm texture and big flavor.

As a salad addition, use the smaller, but no less tasty Granpa's Cock's Plume or the Break O'Day. For stunning color as well as flavor, use slices of White Wonder, Black Krim and the pink Early Swedish varieties.

• The smaller, cherry-type of tomatoes are becoming more popular to grow, and if you've seen the supermarket prices for grape tomatoes, you know why.

The smaller varieties are usually fast-maturing, productive plants that yield thousands of fruits over a period of weeks. You should be pleased with your harvest if you try the green-yellow Green Grape, Banana Legs, Tiny Sweet Millions or Black Plum types.

— Deck accessories give 'finished' look —

(NAPSI)—Millions of homeowners are enjoying the additional living space a deck or patio affords their families. In fact, 25 percent of American homes now have decks—that's 30 million decks.

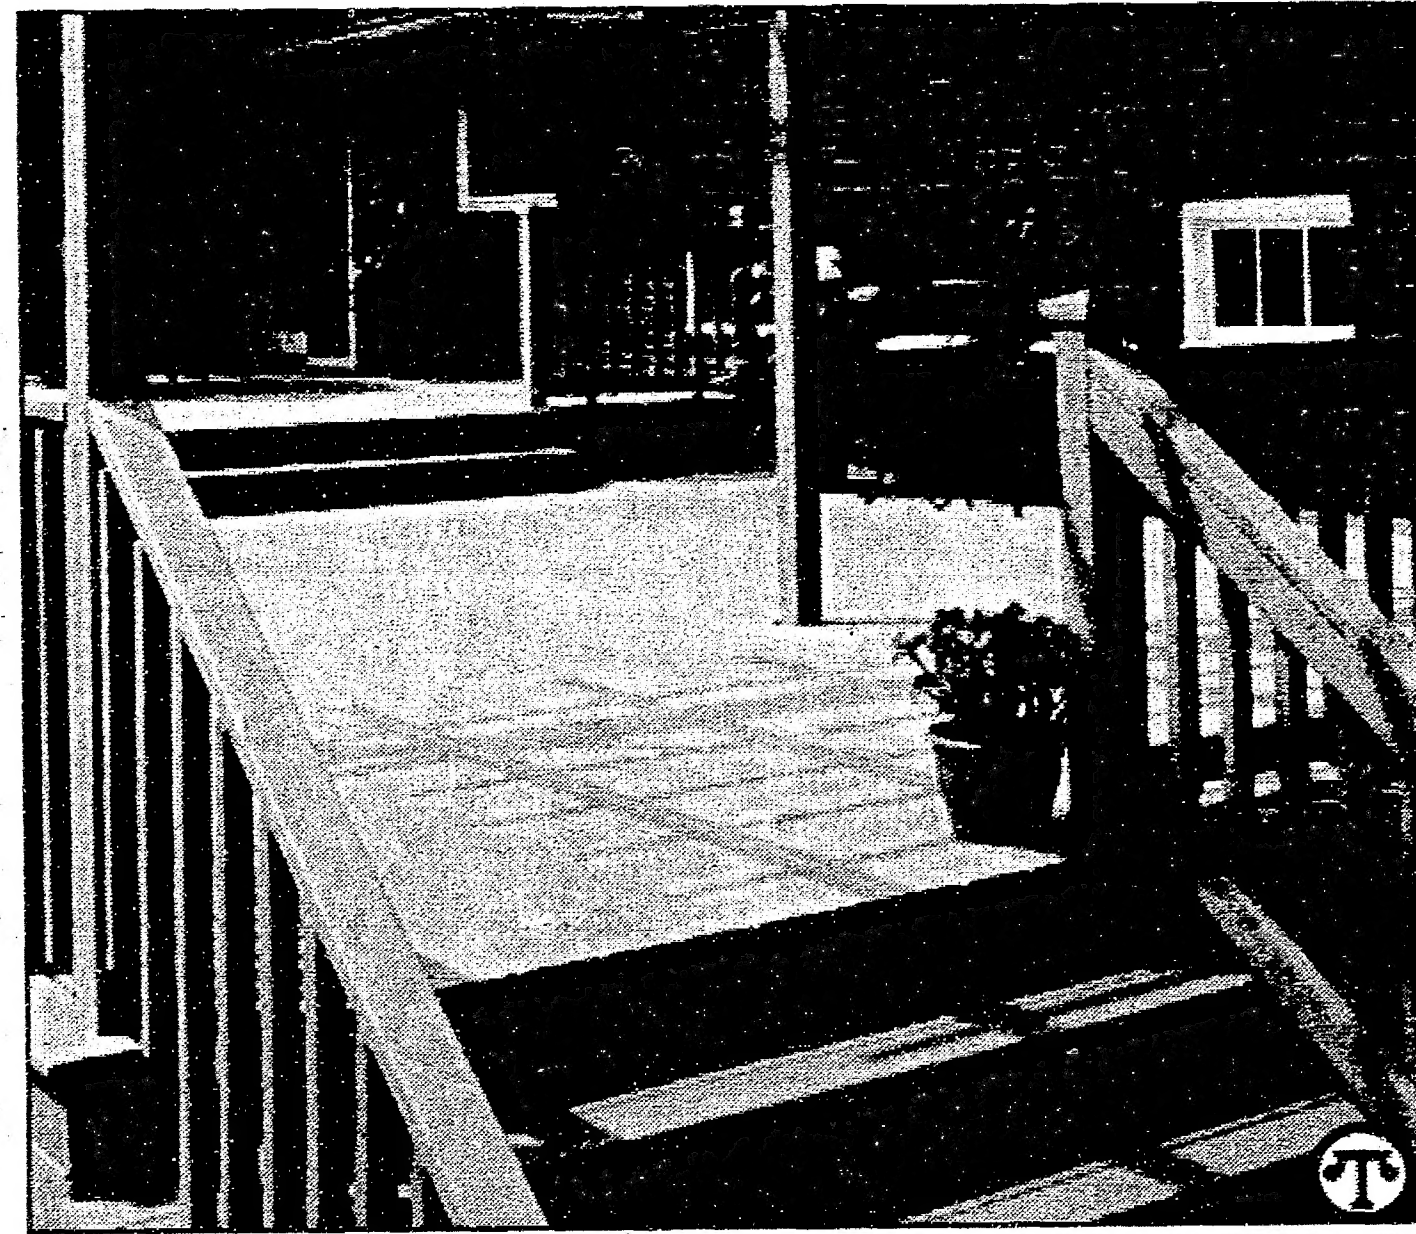

As more and more families take advantage of the added living space, the traditional deck is becoming more upscale.

Homeowners are realizing that simple touches such as adding attractive, ready-made accessories can easily draw out a deck's charm.

Just as crown molding beautifies a home's interior aesthetics, finishing touches such as post caps and post base rings can do wonders by covering a deck's mechanical eyesores.

Post caps come in a number of styles—ranging from angled peaks to flat top surfaces, for example. Post base rings, such as those offered by CertainTeed Boardwalk Composite Decking and Railing, can elegantly accentuate the intersection between post and deck surface.

Another simple addition is "fascia," which conceals structural essentials such as unsightly screws and support beams of knotty southern yellow pine. Fascia is designed to complement existing deck design and create a smooth, finished look.

When choosing a decking system, it often makes sense to go with a style that is part of a complete decking and railing system. This ensures you that your deck— from floor planking to railing and accessories—maintains a consistent, finished look.

The Boardwalk system by CertainTeed is a good bet. The system is easy to install, requires no painting or sealing, and is barefoot-friendly, meaning it won't splinter or crack.

A deck can add much needed living space to a home. By adding simple exterior accessories, your deck can become your family's favorite living room.

For more information on building accessories or Boardwalk Composite Decking and Railing, visit www.certain-teed.com or call 1-800-782-8777.

— You don't have to be a pro to talk 'car talk' —

(ARA) - As we head into the busy summer driving season, many motorists will be taking their vehicles in for routine maintenance and repairs.

According to the experts at the non-profit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence, good communication between shop and customer can make a big difference in getting satisfactory auto service. While today's automotive techs need to understand thousands of pages of technical text, the burden on motorists is much lighter.

Here's a quick road map from ASE of what you need to know and what you need to communicate in order to make the repair process go smoothly:

- Do your homework before taking your vehicle in for repairs or service.
- Read the owner's manual to learn about the vehicle's systems and components.
- Follow the recommended service schedules.
- Keep a log of all repairs and service.

Because you drive your vehicle it every day, you know how it feels and sounds when everything is right. So don't ignore its warning signals. Use all of your senses to inspect your car frequently. Check for:

- Unusual sounds, odors, drips, leaks, smoke, warning lights, gauge readings.
- Changes in acceleration, engine performance, gas mileage, fluid levels.
- Worn tires, belts, hoses.
- Problems in handling, braking, steering, vibrations.
- Note when the problem occurs.
- Is it constant or periodic?
- When the vehicle is cold or after the engine has warmed up?
- At all speeds? Only under acceleration? During braking? When shifting?
- When did the problem first start?

Once you are at the repair establishment, communicate your findings.

• Be prepared to describe the symptoms. (In larger shops you'll probably speak with service writer/service consultant rather than with the technician directly.)

• Carry a written list of the symptoms that you can give to the technician or service consultant.

• Resist the temptation to suggest a specific course of repair. Just as you would with your physician, tell where it hurts and how long it's been that way, but let the technician diagnose and recommend a remedy.

Stay involved ... Ask questions.

• Ask as many questions as you need. Do not be embarrassed to request simple definitions of technical terms.

• Professionally run repair establishments have always recognized the importance of two-way communications in automotive repairs.

• Don't rush the service writer or technician to make an on-the-spot diagnosis. Ask to be called and apprised of the problem, course of action, and costs before work begins.

• Before you leave, be sure you understand all shop policies regarding labor rates, guarantees and acceptable methods of payment.

• Leave a telephone number where you can be called.

The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) was founded in 1972 as a nonprofit, independent organization dedicated to improving the quality of automotive service and repair through the voluntary testing and certification of automotive technicians.

ASE-certified technicians wear blue and white ASE shoulder insignia and carry credentials listing their exact area(s) of certification. Their employers often display the blue and white ASE sign.

For a free brochure with tips on communicating at your repair shop, send a self-addressed, stamped long envelope to: ASE Communication Brochure, Dept. ARA-303, 101 Blue Seal Dr., S.E., Suite 101, Leesburg, VA 20175, or visit www.ase.com for information.
